That Tree in the Road.

"Mr. Walton:—I return the flowers which you had the impudence to send to my daughter. I do not consider you a fit person to be on friendly terms with her, and your attention must cease immediately. If you are a gentleman you will obey my wishes at once.

Respectfully,
GEO. WILMONT."

"Papa! You are not—"

Carrie Wilmont paused, the note she had been reading clutched tightly in her hand, with surprise and alarm depicted on every feature.

Mr. Wilmont regarded her very sternly for a moment.

"I shall return those flowers with that note," he said, motioning to a cluster of violets on the table. "I forbid you to have anything more to do with that fellow. I am surprised that a daughter of mine, who has been brought up as carefully as you have been, has no better sense than to allow such a man to be dangling at her heels. Why, Caroline, it is disgraceful!" And he brought his hand down emphatically on the table.

Mr. Wilmont seldom addressed his daughter by her full name. She now glanced up indignantly.

"Yes, utterly disgraceful! I would rather see you in your grave than his wife. He is a scapegrace—a drunken puppy—and don't you dare to have anything more to do with him! Give me that note!"

Carrie hesitated a moment, crumpling it nervously in her hand.

"Carrie!" said her father, reprovingly.

With a sudden burst of tears, she threw it on the table and left the library. Mr. Wilmont gazed after her in astonishment.

"I declare! I never dreamed that the affair had gone so far," he exclaimed.

"Might you not have been mistaken in young Waldon?" asked Mrs. Wilmont, her mother heart sympathizing with her daughter. "I have met him when he called, and he appears to be a nice young man."

"Oh, yes! He is one of your smooth talkers, and you women are easily hoodwinked. He is a nephew of Col. Usher, and comes of excellent family, but is utterly devoid of principle. I did not know that he was so intimate with Carrie, until my partner expressed his surprise at our allowing his visits; and I made inquiries, and was shocked to learn what a character he bears. He is no fit husband for any girl, and I can't imagine what Carrie sees in him, when there are so many promising young men she might have."

Meantime, up in her own room the culprit sat, a pretty picture of despair. She was a dainty little creature, and no wonder that many had fallen victims to her charms; but to only one had she given encouragement—Robert Waldon. Just the night before she had promised to be his wife, believing that her father would not interfere with her happiness. But her hopes had been suddenly dispelled that morning.

"What! give up Robert? Never! Never!" she exclaimed, burying her face in her hands. "He is not a worthless scapegrace! Oh, it is so cruel! Just when I was so happy! And he! what will he think when he gets that note?" And her tears fell fast.

Robert Waldon was surprised; he dropped the letter on his desk as though it were a live coal.

"By Jove! I don't see what it means," he exclaimed. "Not a fit person to be on friendly terms with his daughter! I don't think that she will agree with him. What could he have heard against my character? And he gazed around his office, as if expecting an answer from the piles of books.

He was an intelligent-looking young man, with a fine, open countenance, and if given to the vices which Mr. Wilmont had mentioned, certainly did not show it. Now his brow was contracted as if in deep thought. A few hours before he had sent the flowers to Carrie Wilmont, little expecting to have them returned, and especially by the rich merchant himself—the one whose good opinion he was most desirous of obtaining.

It is not to be expected that Carrie would submit quietly to her father's wishes. She felt sure that he would not be so cruel as to separate her and Robert Waldon, when he learned that she could not be happy without him; she would beg him to reconsider his decision. But he was stern and determined, and Carrie would make no promises, consequently the interview was very unsatisfactory to both. Then a stolen meeting with Robert Waldon, and she told him all.

"I cannot understand it, Carrie, why those charges are not true. I will go to him and ask for an explanation," he said, angrily.

"Oh, don't! It will only make matters worse, for he is very angry," pleaded Carrie, knowing that both were hasty, and she had reason to dread a meeting. So Robert Waldon reluctantly promised.

This was the beginning, and other meetings followed which were happiness to both. Again Carrie went to her father, but he was immovable. Then the lovers decided on a plan; it was not original, but had served many others under the same circumstances. They would elope.

"I cannot give you the wealth to which you are accustomed, Carrie," Waldon said, "but I can make you comfortable, and my love shall try to atone for the rest. Sometimes I think it is wrong to take you from your beautiful home, lest you should regret it. But, darling, I cannot give you up."

"It is not money that makes happiness, Robert, and I know you will not disappoint me in proving that my parents are mistaken about you. For as much as I love you, it would kill me if they would not forgive me.

"I shall not disappoint you," Waldon answered, decidedly.

So it was settled, and a moonlight night agreed upon. A week passed, and Mr. Wilmont began to relent, and offered to take Carrie out driving one evening, but she refused on the plea of a headache, and went early to her room.

"Strange! That girl is still moping about that fellow, and he was drunk last night. But Carrie says it is not true, and that someone is trying to ruin his character. It is shameful! I would lock her up if I thought there was danger of her meeting that villain!" And Mr. Wilmont paced excitingly to and fro.

After the pretty invalid had gone to her room, instead of retiring she donned a traveling dress and took her place at a window, with a large valise, packed to its utmost capacity, lying at her feet. Her room faced the lawn, and she had no fear of being seen by any chance passer-by. The town clock struck nine, and she became nervous. Presently a shrill imitation of a cricket sounded from among the trees; there was a flutter of a handkerchief—and then Robert Waldon came boldly under the window.

"Carrie!" he said, softly.

"Yes, Robert." And she stepped out on the roof of the portico and dropped the valise to Waldon.

"Be careful, darling!" came from below, as she stepped from the roof to a tree close by.

"Yes, Robert." And she slowly descended.

"Hurry, pet!" said Waldon, nervously, as she paused.

She did hurry—stepping on a branch which was not strong, and with a crash it fell to the ground. Waldon sprang forward and caught her.

"Are you hurt, darling?"

"No, no! Oh, Robert, they have heard us!" she exclaimed, as a light was seen rapidly moving along the library windows.

Waldon lifted her in his arms and dashed back among the trees, leaving the valise where he had dropped it. He had a horse and buggy close by.

"They are in my room—they know it! Oh, what shall we do?" And Carrie clutched Waldon's arm.

"I think we are safe now," he answered, as his swift horse dashed down the road.

They had decided to go to an adjoining town, and be married by a mutual friend. They knew that Mr. Wilmont would pursue them, and their only hope was in the speed of their horse.

They had gone several miles without hearing any one in pursuit, and were congratulating themselves that their troubles were over, when they came in sight of a dark object across the road which proved to be a large tree blown down by a storm. Here was a dilemma; on one side the road descended by a steep bank to a creek below, and on the other rose a rocky bluff, and if they turned back they were liable to meet those in pursuit.

While they were deciding what was best for them to do, they suddenly heard horses rapidly approaching; they glanced at each other in dismay.

"Stop there, you villain!" shouted a stern voice.

"Oh, Robert, it is father! What shall we do!" And Carrie sprang from the buggy and stood beside Waldon, who had been examining the road.

"You're a dead man!" and the quick report of a revolver followed, but, thanks to Mr. Wilmont's excitement, the ball went wide of its mark, and the culprit stood unharmed.

"Mr. Wilmont, I love your daughter, and she is mine through life or death. You may kill me if you wish, but you shall not separate us."

"Isn't whom?" asked Tom Lawton, who now rode up to his uncle.

"Why, Col. Usher's nephew," he faltered.

"Oh, papa! Did you think it was he? Why, this is Robert Waldon," and Carrie laughed shyly.

"Well, well, I never! I believe I made a mistake."

"Rob, old boy, you have had a narrow escape." And Tom Lawton shook Waldon's hand heartily. "Uncle Wilmont, this gentleman is a particular friend of mine, and I congratulate you. His name is Waldon, while you mistook him for James Waldron."

"I only went by the last name, and I thought—well it was a mistake. Bless me, sir, I never knew you were sweet on Carrie," said Mr. Wilmont, seizing Waldon's hand. "Why, I have not the least objection to you and you may have my little girl, for she has caused me a great deal of trouble the last few weeks and perhaps you can manage her better than I can. I saw you in court this morning when you won that case, and I know you will make your way. But I never expected to make your acquaintance in this manner." And he laughed.

The returning home was quite different from the leaving. Mr. Wilmont and his nephew rode alongside the buggy; they were, as Tom Lawton said, 'escorting the conquering heroes home.'

A month later they had joined hands under less difficult circumstances, and the heretofore harsh parent witnessed the ceremony. But although they were very happy, the young folks could not help feeling a trifle disappointed, for it would have been so romantic, you know, if their first attempt had not been frustrated by that tree in the road.

The Fighting Parson of Texas.

Texas has still some pioneer preachers. The San Angela paper reports briefly a sermon delivered some time since in that place by Andrew Jackson Potter, the fighting parson. Among other things he said: "I have preached out here on the frontier for the past 16 years, and I have lived and supported a large family. I must say, though, I got most of my support from the cowboys. Years ago, where the town of Uvalade now stands, I have skipped from thicket to thicket in my endeavors to escape from the leaden bullets that were flying around in order to reach a little old log school-house where I could preach to a few women and children. Now, look at Uvalade to-day, with its five fine churches, whose spires point heavenward. I went to Fort Clark to preach several years ago, and started in without a church member, and at the end of twelve months I quit without a member. I thought that was the hardest place I had struck. One day just after the boys had been paid off, I was walking up the street and noticed a lot of soldiers and gamblers collected in front of a saloon. As I was passing one of them hollered: "Hullo parson!" I went across, and they asked me to preach, saying that this was the biggest crowd I'd ever have the opportunity to talk to in Brackett. I said: 'Gentlemen, preaching is my business, but I always make it a rule before beginning to take up a collection.' Taking off my hat I started around. All that I presented the hat to threw in 50 cents until I came to a young gambler. He looked at the hat, shook his head, saying: 'Parson, I'd like to chip in, but I'm busted.' I got more money in that place than any I have been in. Holding services at a place one time I took up a collection for the support of missions. There was a poor old lady present who I noticed dropped a $5 gold piece in the hat. I knew she was very poor and not able to afford so much, and thought she had intended to throw in a quarter, but had made a mistake. So next day I met her husband and said to him: 'Look here, your wife put a $5 gold piece in the hat yesterday. I think she must have made a mistake.' 'No, no,' he replied, 'my wife didn't make no mistake. She don't fling often, but let me tell when she flings she flings.'"

He Was Unfortunate.

A venerable tramp entered an Austin business house and said to the proprietor:

"I am the most unfortunate man in the world. Please do something for me."

"I don't know who you are," replied the merchant. "You may be an imposter."

"Here is a certificate from Parson Jordan, of Galveston, that I am a hard-working, honest man, who has been unfortunate."

"A certificate from Parson Jordan, of Galveston?" asked the merchant.

"Yes, sir here it is," replied the mendicant, handing the merchant a paper. The merchant looked at the paper and said:

"Parson Jordan, of Galveston, is my brother. I know his signature very well and his signature on that certificate is forged."

"Just as I expected," whined the mendicant. "I told you I was the most unfortunate man in the world. Just think of me coming to the brother of Parson Jordan, of all the people in the town, and showing him that forged certificate, when there is not another man in Austin who knows his signature.—Texas Siftings.

Not the Old Days.

The boat was almost ready to leave the bank at Cincinnati when he came aboard. He had a sanctimonious face, a white choker, a frock coat, and the meek and humble expression of his face was good to see. Somebody said he was a Baptist preacher.

The gangplank was being hauled in when the other appeared. He was just as sanctimonious; he chokered the same; he sadly smiled as the mate cussed his eyes for not being on hand two minutes sooner. Somebody said he was a Methodist minister.

After the boat got off the two humble-faced went about among the passengers, shaking the hand of good will and speaking soft words. There were only a few of us, and the crowd was soon sized up.

By and by I went to my stateroom. The window was open, and I heard voices. The two sad smilers were talking.

"Well?" queries one.

"Cussed poor crowd!" mournfully replied the other.

"Don't believe there's a dollar to be made," sighs the first.

"Nor I, either. Shall we go down to Cairo?"

"Not by a blanked sight! We'll drop off at the first stop and try highway robbery. If it's got to such a pass that a feller can't raise a chip or two at an honest game of poker on a steamboat, we might as well go out of business!"

And the two meek and lowly chaps shouldered their sad and resigned expressions of countenance, and went down stairs to dodge the clerk.

"Crossest Man in Alabama."

"De crossest man in Alabama lives dar," said the driver as we approached a way-side home, near Selma, Ala., to ask accommodations for the night. At supper, and after it, "mine host" scowled at every one, found fault with everything earthly, and I was wondering if he would not grow if the heavenly halo didn't fit him, when incidental mention being made of the comet of 1882, he said: "I didn't like its form, its tail should have been fanshaped!"

But, next morning, he appeared half offended at our offering pay for his hospitality! My companion, however, made him accept as a present a sample from his case of goods.

Six weeks later, I drew up at the same house. The planter stepped lithely from the porch, and greeted me cordially, I could scarcely believe that this clear-complexioned, bright-eyed, animated fellow, and the morose being of a few weeks, were the same. He inquired after my companion of the former visit and regretted he was not with me. "Yes," said his wife, "we are both much indebted to him."

"How?" I asked, in surprise.

"For this wonderful change in my husband. Your friend when leaving, handed him a bottle of Warner's safe cure. He took it, and two other bottles, and now—". "And now," he broke in, "from an ill-feeling, growing old dear, I am healthy and so cheerful my wife declares she has fallen in love with me again."

It has made over again a thousand love matches, and keeps sweet the tempers of the family circle everywhere.

The odd Escape from a Bear.

The farmers in the vicinity of Newry do not try to keep many sheep. One of them went up the mountain with a yoke of oxen to haul out some timber not long ago. A very large and hungry bear appeared on the scene and rushed at the cattle with open mouth and eyes full of fury. The oxen snorted and started on a wild gallop down the steep mountain. The farmer's judgement was as good as his cattle's. He had nothing with him with which to defend himself, and he had to think lively to devise a way to escape. He did an amusing but brilliant thing. Running between the oxen he caught hold of the ring in the yoke and dangled there till the oxen had carried him to the foot of the mountain and out of the reach of the bear. The old growler jumped and snarled around the oxen's flanks and tore their hides, but could not reach the man between them hanging on for dear life.—Lewistown [Me.] Journal.

Looking to the Future.

She hadn't made up her mind about it, and they were so widely, oh, so widely separated—in the parlor—from each other; maybe as much as three feet. There was a passive smile fringed with doubt between them. She was engaged in deep meditation with herself and was looking on the floor, when he said:

"Matilda, why not give an answer to my proposal?"

"Why, I was just thinking how you will look when you get old," she thoughtfully replied.

JOSH BILLINGS.

Henry W. Shaw, the humorist, known to the literary world as 'Josh Billings' died at Monterey, Cal., the other morning, from a stroke of apoplexy. The body was embalmed and sent East. Mr. Shaw was sixty-five years old, having been born in Lanesborough, Berkshire county, Mass., in 1820. He resided in his native town until he had reached the age of fourteen when he went West and for several years lead a frontier life, being engaged in the various occupations of steering steamboats, keeping a country store, and acting as auctioneer in the small Western towns and cities. Finally, becoming weary of this irregular life, and being desirous of giving his daughters a better education than the limited facilities in the West at that time afforded, Mr. Shaw in 1865 removed to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and devoted himself to editing a small paper. It was while engaged in this work that he wrote the first humorous article which attracted attention, principally by its phonetic spelling. He called it "Essa on the Mule." It was extensively copied, and the name of Josh Billings soon became known throughout the land. From that time until his death his career was one of continual financial success. One weekly paper alone in New York paid him $100 a week for a half column of matter, and his lectures brought him in a large and steady revenue. In 1873 he began the publication of his "Farmers' Almanac," a book which in its second year had a sale of 127,000 copies, and in ten years had netted the author and publisher $30,000 each. Mr. Shaw's humor, says a New York paper, was hidden in, and did not consist in mere phonetic spelling, and underneath the bad spelling of his proverbs and aphorismo there is at times a depth of wisdom and philosophy which entitles him to a higher place in the world of letters than that of a simple humorist. He was a throughly domestic man, fond of his home and his family, and in his daily life showed none of that eccentricity which his writings would induce the reader to attribute to him. He wore his hair long, not from literary affection, but to hide a physical defect.

Putting on Style.

A couple of well dressed country Jakes strolled into a celebrated New York restaurant, sat down at a table, and glanced about, making a remarkably unsuccessful attempt to appear at home.

"Gentlemen, what do you wish?" asked the waiter, handing them the bill of fare.

They looked at each other and then at the bill of fare, but they could not find out what they wanted. The waiter become a trifle impatient. Just at this crisis a gentleman, probably a Frenchman, who was eating his dinner, called out:

"Waiter, un vurre d'ean."

"One of what?"

"A verdon."

The waiter smiled, disappeared, and returned in a moment with a glass containing some transparent fluid.

"The same for me," said countryman number two.

Once more the waiter disappeared, and in a short time brought the desired refreshment.

The two strangers looked at their glasses, then sipped the contents and gazed inquiringly at each other.

"Calculate you have to drink this here stuff a long while before you like it," remarked Jake number one.

The two glasses were emptied, and then, with a very majestic air, one of them thumped on the table. The waiter came.

"What's the damage?"

"Nothing at all, sir."

"We ain't doing New Yoak on the cheap plan," and he squeezed a nickle into the waiter's palm.

When they got out on Broadway, one of them said:

"Jedediah, if I didn't know that ere stuff was verdough, I,d swear it was water."

Fixing a Masher.

In the first place he was fifty years old, baldheaded, and ought to have been ashamed of himself. In the next, he probably had a wife and four or five children in Cleveland and he had no business running after strange gods on a railway train.

There were about twenty passengers in the coach, and of these only five were females. The one who laid over all the rest for youth, good looks, and a far-away look in her eyes, had a seat in her eyes, had a seat all alone, and she seemed disposed to peruse a dime novel.

This old bald head, this old masher in human form, on whose wrinkled forehead the kiss of a fond wife could yet be for sixty cents on the dollar, got his eyes on that girl at an early date, and the conductor had scarcely made his round before he walked up the aisle and plumped down beside her. She betrayed her surprise and maidenly modesty. Indeed, she looked too coy and sweet for anything.

The old masher began to talk, makhimself fully at home, and after a little the girl seemed to enjoy his company. The rest of us did pity her from the bottom of our hearts. So young! So unsophisticated! So ready to fall into the net being spread for her by that old gravel-roofed hyena!

It might have been half an hour after he sat down when we saw the back of his neck flush to a deep red, succeeded by a paleness which would have put roller flour way back alongside of tar. Had he found a carpet tack? Did the motion of the cars make him seasick?

Then we saw her shake her head to emphasize her words, and pretty soon the old masher pulled out his wallet and counted $50, and put the bills in her hand. This was no sooner accomplished than he bobbed up, returned to his original seat, and sat down with a "D——n it!" which was heard all over the car.

The girl counted the money twice over, nodded her head as she finished, and the bills went down behind the lace at her throat.

Old bald head! But wasn't he mad? He snorted and kicked and scraped, and nobody dared go near him until the train reached Dayton and the sad-eyed girl got off. Then he spouted. Says he:

"Durn my buttons! but we were talking away as sweet a sugar when she suddenly says:

"'Mister I want fifty dollars!'"

"'Not of me!'"

"'You bet!'"

"'Cause why?'"

"'Cause if you don't I'll stand up here and scream out that you have insulted me! The men on this car will not only punch your old bald head until it will ache for the next six months, but your name will get into the papers and your dear wife hold a surprise party over your remains. Come down!'

"She had me. I forked over."

Every listener realized that he was telling the solemn truth, and every man gasped out:

"By the great horn spoon!"

SAVAGE SEA ELEPHANTS.

Marine Monsters that Bite off and Throw Rocks.

"Did you ever meet with a sea elephant, captain?"

"Oh, yes. Up 'round Behring's straits I've often seen them, and they are tough fellows, too," replied Captain Gilderdale to the reporter of the New Haven News.

"Are they hard to kill?"

"No; it's easy enough killing 'em, but when they are dying they kick up a great fuss. With their little short teeth I've seen 'em bite off a piece of rock as a spittoon and throw it at a man with fearful force. I found one on a reef one day, and as we needed some more oil I ordered the boat steerer to make for the gulley way in the rocks where he was. We came right up to him, put an iron into him and hauled him after us in to clear water.

"Then I got into the bow right under his nose, when he grabbed the bow of the boat in his teeth and tore away a streak fore and aft. He bit off the ends of three lances, and another he snaped out of my hands and tried to throw it at us. Once he made a snap at me with his head, throwing me right into the boat on my back. I picked up a hatchet, and with my two hands buried it in his head up to the handle. It killed him outright."

"He was twenty-five feet long, and gave two dozen barrels of oil. We made blanket sheets of his blubber, cutting it into pieces three feet square. Then piercing a hole in the centre of each block and running through a spun rope we made a raft of them and towed it to the ship. The usual way to kill a sea-elephant used to be to run right up to him, hit him under the jaw with an oar, which would make him raise up his head, when we would fire right up through his mouth into the brain."

THE ELECTIONS.

Latest Returns of the Election in Pennsylvania show a large Reduction of the Republican 81,000 Majority.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—David B. Hill is elected Governor of New York by 15,000 majority.

VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 3.—Returns from counties classed as doubtful, such as Culpepper, Prince Edward, Halifax, Charlotte, Rock Bridge, Rockingham, Alexandria, county and city, show that the Democratic Legislative ticket has been elected in all of them, which will give the Democrats a good majority in both houses.

DEMOCRATS have all reasons to be satisfied with the result of Tuesday's elections. The clean sweep which was made of New York and Virginia put the democratic party on a solid ba is. The election of Govern or Hill in New York is a great triumph which will fire the democracy all over the land with confidence and hope. Old Virginia, by the election of Fitzhugh see and a democratic legislature, virtually wipes out the offensive Mahome reign, and puts the impudent pateson in the shade forever.

Considering these two victories the democrats can afford to overlook results in other states and rejoice over the gain of two states that will sound the keynote to future democratic victories.

Now let the Band play!

GENERAL George B. McClellen, of whose death we give an account in another column, was buried in the cemetery at Trenton, on Monday afternoon. Rev. W. U. Markland, of Baltimore, read the Burial service of the Presbyterian church and Rev. John Hall, of Trenton, offered prayer.

Gen. McClellan was a distinguished military man and was highly estemed by the many surviving soldiers who knew him. He was also one of the principal leaders in the Demecratic party.

FERDINAND WARD, the renowned financial swindler, who got the better of Gen. Grant, was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

President Cleveland Sets Apart Nov. 26th for the Occasion.

A PROCLAMATION.

By the President of the United States of America: The American people have always abundant cause to be thankful to Almighty God, whose watchful care and guiding hand haye been manifested in every stage of their natural life—guarding and protecting them in time of peril, and safely leading them in the hour ot darkness and danger. It is fitting and proper that a nation thus favored should on one day in every year, for that purpose especially appointed, publicly acknowledge the goodness of God, and return thanks to Him for all His gracious gifts.

Therefore I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 26th day of November, instant, as a day of public thanksgiving and prayer; and do invoke the observance of the same by all the people of the land.

On that day let all secular business be suspended. And let the people assemble in their usual places of worship, and with prayer and songs of praise devoutly testify their gratitude to the Giver of every good and perfect gift for all that He has done for us in the year that has passed; for our preservation as a united nation and for our deliverance from the shock and danger of political convulsion; for the blessings of peace and for our safety and quiet while wars and rumors of wars haye agitated and afflicted other nations of the earth; for our security against the scourge of pestilence which in other lands has claimed its dead by thousands, and filled the streets with mourners; for plenteous crops which reward the husbandman for his labor and increase our nation's wealth; and for contentment throughout our borders which follows in the train of prosperity and abundance.

And let there be also on the day thus set apart a reunion of families sanctified and chastened by tender memories and associations; and let the social intercorse of friends with pleasant reminiscence renew the ties of affection and strengthen the bonds of kindly feeling.

And let us by no means forget, while we give thanks and enjoy the comforts which have crowned our lives, that truly grateful hearts are inclined to deeds of charity, and that a kind and thoughtful remembrance of the poor will double the pleasures of our condition and render our praise and thanksgiving more acceptable in the sight of the Lord.

Done at the City of Washington, this second day of November, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and tenth.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

SUDDEN DEATH OF GENERAL McCLELLAN AT ORANGE, N. J.

A Short Sketch of his Career.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 29.—General George B. McClellan died suddenly at his residence on Orange Mountain shortly after midnight last night from neuralgia of the heart. He returned home about six weeks ago from his trip West with his family, and had been under the care of a physician for about two weeks. Nothing serious was expected until yesterday, when he became worse. He was surrounded by his family. Invitations had been issued for a reception this evening.

General McClellan's summer home, erected after the war, was on the summit of Orange Mountain, next to that of his father-in-law, General Marcy, and he had lived there about 20 years. The whole community was shocked by the news of his death. The flags are flying at half mast, and the Grand Army Post has called a meeting to express their sorrow and offer a bodyguard for the remains. General McClellan was an elder in the Presbyterian church.

George Brinton McClellan was born in Philadelphia December 3, 1826, so that he was not quite 59 years of age at the time of his death. He was the son of Dr. George McClellan, the founder of Jeffersen Medical College, a physician of distinction and a worthy descendant of the Scotch noble family, the last head of which was Lord Kirkhudbright. Dr. McClellan died in 1846. His mother, Elizabeth Brinton, was a representative of a very sturdy American family, who lived at her countryseat in West Philadelphia. After some preliminary home training at his father's home, young McClellan was sent to a school kept by Sears Cook Walker, where were also such men as Dr. Caspar Wistar, Dr. Logan, and Richard Sargent. With him he remained four years, and was then transferred to the care of a German named Schipper, with whom he began a course in Latin and Greek. He next attended the preparatory school of the University, where he entered the University remaining there two years. He was a good scholar, but not a brilliant or precocious boy. His taste was for solid studies, rather than showy achievements.

In June, 1842, he entered the West Point Military Academy in obedience to a settled inclination for a military life. McClellan graduated before he had completed his twentieth year in the summer of 1846, standing second in general rank in the largest class that had ever left the Academy. In engineering and geology he was first.

McClellan was breveted second lieutenant of engineers, and assigned to duty with a corps of sappers and miners then forming to participate in the Mexican war. On returning to West Point he was made director of field labors there and instructor of bayonet exercise.

In January 1857, Captain McClellan resigned his commission in the army, having been fifteen years in the service, and accepted the position of Chief Engineer of the Illinois Central Railroad. He soon after became Vice-President of the road, and in May 1860, he married Miss Ellen Marcy, daughter of General R. B. Marcy. In August of this year he resigned the Vice-Presidency of the Illinois Central Railroad to accept the Presidency of the Ohio & Mississippi Road, at a salary of $10,000 per annum, which post he held, residing in Cincinnati, until the war broke out between the North and the South.

This lucrative position he promptly resigned to accept on April 23, 1861, a major-generalship of volunteers from the State of Ohio, a command also having been tendered him by Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania.

On the 10th of May, 1861, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois were made a department, and General McClellan was appointed to the command, and made major-general in the regular army.

In 1870 he was appointed Chief Engineer of the Department of Docks and Piers in New York City, a berth which he resigned in May, 1873.

In 1874 he made another foreign tour remaining abroad until August of the following year, and extending his journeys as far as Egypt, in which country he received many attentions from the Khedive. In March, 1877, Governor Robinson nominated him for the position of Superintendent of Public Works of New York, but the nomination was rejected by a party vote in the Senate. At this time he was a citizen of New Jersey, having established his home permanently at Orange Mountain in 1872. In September 1877, he was suddenly made the Democratic candidate for Governor of the State. At the election in November he defeated Newell, the Republican candidate, by 13,339 plurality, having a clear majority of 7,366 over all opposition. He was sworn into office on January 16, 1878, without any unusual display at his own special request, and discharged the duties of the Governorship for three years to the general satisfaction of the people and with great credit to himself.

Since the end of his term in 1881, he lived in retirement, haying meanwhile made another lengthy foreign tour. His name was, however, frequently mentioned in connection with public office. His friends urged his name for the Secretaryship of War in Cleveland's Cabinet. If he had lived, he would have been a leading candidate for the United States Senatorship in 1887, in case the Democratic party control the Legislature at next year's election.

General McClellan's family consisted of his wife and two children—a daughter, May, aged twenty-three, and a son Max, aged nineteen. His only brother, Major Arthur McClellan, a gallant officer, resides at Drifton, Pa., where he directs the coal firm of Cox Brothers.

Hundreds of letters from those using Ayer's Hair Vigor attest its value as a restorer of gray hair to its natural color. As a stimlantu and tonic, preventing and often curing baldness, and cleansing and soothing the scalp, its use cannot be too strongly recommended.

A SIGN in Cleveland reads "Ice Kream Sallune," which is probably the worst cold spell of the season; but for the worst spell of cold Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine is the best cure you will be able to find. BILIOUSNESS.

Bilious symptoms invariably arise from indigestion, such as furred tongue, vomiting of bile, giddiness, sick headache, irregular bowels. The liver secretes the bile and acts like a filter or sieve, to cleanse impurities of the blood. By irregularity in its action or suspensions of its functions, the bile is liable to overflow into the blood, causing jaundice, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, bilious diarrhœa, a languid, weary feeling and many other distressing symptoms. Biliousness may be properly termed an affection of the liver, and can be thoroughly cured by the grand regulator of the liver and biliary organs, BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. Act upon the stomach, bowels and liver, making healthy bile and pure blood, and opens the culverts and sluiceways for the outlet of disease. Sold everywhere and guaranteed to cure.

Every Farm an Experimental Station.

The best analysis of any fertilizer is in the farmer's own hands. Soil tests are reliable tests to determine the value of any manure. An analysis is only an intelligent suggestion, but actual trial by the farmer proves conclusively whether a fertilizer will give good crops or not. For six years our $25 Phosphate has stood severe field tests. The best results have been obtained by intelligent farmers who use it season after season in preference to any other brand. If you have not used it yet, we hope you will do so this season.

—"Hello, what is it ?" Why the new Clothing at D. S. Kauffman & Co. Come and see it—it takes the belt for quality and fit. Sold at popular prices.

—This office is prepared to turn out first-class job work at reasonable prices. The patronage of business men and the public in general is respectfully solicited.

—H. M. Clark's elocutionary readings on last Thursday evening were fairly attended and those who were there pronounced it a good entertainment.

—Miss Maggie Miller, of Centre Hall, will spend several weeks in town, during which time she will attend to the wants of our ladies in the line of dressmaking.

—Mingle's sale on last Saturday was very well attended. There was a large crowd of people in town and for all things offered for sale there were ready purchasers.

NOTICE.—The new Process Roller Flour, manufactured by J. B. Fisher, Penn Hall, is for sale at D. S. Kauffman & Co's new store, Main street Millheim, Pa.

—Dr. J. F. Harter has completed the neat wire fence which encloses his premises on Main street. Things are beginning to look real tidy around Shady's domains.

—Mr. J. W. Adams, of Berrien Springs, Mich., came home on a visit to his parents on North street. He expects to spend the greater part of this winter with them.

—Michael F. Hess, administrator of the estate of Sarah Hess, late of Haines township, dec'd. will sell the personal property of the decedent, on Saturday, Nov. 14th. See bills.

—The teachers of the Penn street schools, Mr. Long and Mr. Limbert, indulged in healthy outdoor exercise last Tuesday, by planting several maple trees in the school yard.

A CURE AT LAST.—Ely's Cream Balm goes more directly than any other catarrh remedy to the seat of the disease, and has resulted in more cures here than all others.—Wilkesbarre, Pa., Leader.

MY SON, aged nine years, was afflicted with catarrh, the use of Ely's Cream Balm effected a complete cure.—W. E. Hamman, Druggist, Easton, Pa. 40-4t —Preaching in the Lutheran church of this place on Sunday evening by Rev. M. L. Deitzler.

—Ladies' Cloth for dresses in all colors at Spigelmyer's.

—The band enlivened Kauffman's store on Monday evening with a good serenade.

—Snowflakes make their appearance nearly every day and it seems as if winter had come indeed.

—Judging by the Coburn correspondence that little town is well stirred up on the sidewalk question.

—Sunday's dismal weather greatly interfered with church services, most people preferring to stay at home.

—Both the grammar and the primary schools on Penn street were closed on Tuesday on account of the election.

—Mr. Peter Wolf, of Chathan's Run, Clinton Co., was over a few days, to attend Behm's sale on last Thursday.

—Mr and Mrs. Hooveman, in company with Mr. A. F. Harter and Miss Minnie Hartman, are off on a trip to the East.

—Where, oh where is our fire department ? Has it turned into a secret society, whose proceedings are not intended for the public ear ?

A PURE AND RELIABLE MEDICINE.—A compound fluid extract of roots, leaves, bark and berries is Burdock Blood Bitters. They cure all diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys.

—Miss Mary Straw, we are told, expects to accompany Dr. D. H. Mingle and family on their westward journey, with the intention of making her home with them, at least for a while.

—A turnip measuring 32 inches in circumference and weighing 8 pounds and 2 oz. was brought to this office. It was grown by Rev. C. F. Deininger. Mr. Deininger calls it the new Cleveland variety.

—We are happy to state, that Miss Sadie Adams, who was so unfortunate some time ago in receiving serious burns about her body while at Lewisburg, is improving and that there are good hopes for her ultimate recovery.

—There will be services in the U. B. church on Friday evening by Rev. J. A. Clemm, Presiding Elder. Also on Sunday morning at 10:30, by Rev. Burkett, of Ohio. The public are cordially invited to attend these services.

Do not suppose that because it is recommended for animals that Arnica & Oil Liniment is an offensive preparation. It will not stain clothing or the fairest skin.

For sale by J. Spigelmyer and D. S. Kauffman, & Co., Millheim Pa.

—Two new machines have been placed in the planing mill of Elias Luse & Son, one of them for the purpose of manufacturing blinds for shutters. These gentlemen commenced at the foot of the ladder, with but two or three machines and now their mill boasts of 15 different machines and a continual rush of large orders for work.

—An animated discussion of various interesting topics took place in Kauffman's store last Saturday evening. The most brilliant talent of Millheim and vicinity participated in the debate and quite a lot of curious spectators took it all in. Gentlemen, we would propose the organization of a literary and debating club.

—J. H. B. Hartman's made a large party for a lot of little girls in honor of their daughter Mary's seventh birthday last Thursday evening. Another one of similar nature was given at the residence of Jerome Spigelmyer, for their daughter, Carrie, last Monday evening. These parties are getting to be quite in vogue around here.

THE U. S. Dispensatory and the Science of Chemistry justify the assertion that for tonic, diaphoretic and expectorant properties, no combination of remedies can be devised to equal in power and efficacy Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine. It is the safe and reliable standby in case of croup and whooping-cough. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refuded.

—The telephone wire was stretched last Thursday and the first message sent over it on Friday morning. This puts Millheim and Coburn upon "speaking terms" and the enterprise will prove a great convenience. The instruments are placed as follows: At Millheim, in Musser & Smith's hardware store, at Coburn, in the railroad station.

—The teachers of Millheim and Penn township met on Tuesday evening for the purpose of making arrangements to organize a literary society in this town. Committees on constitution and by-laws and also to secure a suitable place for meetings were appointed, and Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th, was fixed upon as the time for the next meeting, in the Penn street grammar school room. Everybody is cordially invited to attend and enroll as members.

—Rev. J. A. Bright received a unanimous call from a Lutheran charge in the state of Illinois, to become its pastor at a large salary, all moving expenses paid and rent free. He has however declined the call and will remain in Ellsworth, and preach at his regular appointments as heretofore, all of which shows that the Rev. is a gentleman of sound judgement.—Ellsworth (Kansas) Reporter.

—This is the season when lumbermen should provide themselves with good boots. The best place to buy them is at Kauffman's store, Main street, Millheim, Pa.

—The first copy of the Keystone Gazette, another of Bellefonte's new weekly papers, is on our table. It is well edited and in its general make-up presents a neat appearance. But alas, it is a rank Republican paper—and right here we will stop and say no more.

A CHANGE.—After three years' faithful work as compositor on the JOURNAL, S. H. Alter left the case last Saturday with the intention of attending school this winter. Fred Brumgard, a son of our townsman E. J. Brumgard, steps in as the new "devil."

A single trial of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters will convince any one troubled with costsyness, torpid liver or any kindred diseases of their curative properties. They only cost 25 cents per bottle.

—We call the attention of our lady readers to the fact that Mrs. E. J. Brumgard's fresh stock of Millinery Goods is unexcelled. Her assortment of Hats, Bonnets, Feathers, and Trimmings are "just too lovely for anything," and her prices are as low as anywhere. If you need new headwear for this winter call on her and she will suit you.

—A Newspaper subscriber remarked that he found it much cheaper to pay for his paper in advance than at the end of the year. In answer to a query, he gave as a reason that when paid in advance he was getting something new for his money, but to do so at the end of the year was like paying for worn out clothes—there was none of the pleasure of anticipation in the transaction. That man was something of a philosopher.—Ex.

AN ORNAMENT TO TOWN.—The iron fence which adorns the front of the prospective Fairview Cemetery in the western part of Main street is a substantial as well as ornamental improvement. The arched gateway, bearing the name of the cemetery in large letters presents a fine appearance and altogether the affair is a credit to town. Millheim has made wonderful progressive strides in the last year as far as public accommodations are concerned. It has a fire apparatus, a town clock, a new cemetery and telephonic connection with the nearest railroad point. Enterprise and push truly are two powerful factors in a community.

—On Tuesday the telephone wire was broken somewhere between this place and Coburn, but it was very soon mended again by Mr. Kreamer, the R. R. agent, and in the evening its powers were tested by our band. The boys were out serenading, when a message came from Coburn that they would like to share some of the fine music. The band played several pieces in Musser & Smith's store, the telephone office, and the Coburnites being congregated in the ticket office had the pleasure of distinctly hearing every note, even at a distance of six feet from the instrument. This was something new for Coburn folks and they enjoyed it very much.

AT REST.—Mr. & Mrs. A. J. Harter, of this place, were called to Hartleton, Union county, on Saturday evening on account of the sudden death of Mrs. Geo. P. Ruhl, the mother of Mrs. Harter. Mrs. Ruhl had been in good health and was feeling better than usual until shortly before she died. She was entertaining some frieuds at the supper table on Saturday evening and partook of a hearty meal herself, when almost in the "twinkling of an eye" her head dropped on the table and her spirit left the body for a higher and happier sphere. Mrs. Ruhl was a model wife and mother, a Christian lady and an esteemed neighbor. Her death is an unspeakable bereavement to her kind husband and loving children and the writer offers his sincere sympathy in their heavy affliction. The funeral will take place tomorrow.

—Last week's Bellefonte Watchman contains the following, which may serve as a warning to handle coal stoves with care during the coming winter:

SUFFOCATED BY COAL GAS.—Mr. Mingle, of the Pennsvalley Banking Company at Centre Hall, sent us by telephone yesterday morning the particulars of a sad affair in that place on Wednesday night. It appears that Mrs. Susan McCulley, an old lady who lives in the house adjoining Mr. Mingle's residence, probably afraid to stay alone secured Mamie Keller, a little daughter of ex-Treasurer D. C Keller, to sleep with her. The two seem to have gone to bed with the dampers of the stove turned so that the gas from the coal escaped in such quantities as to fill the room and render them unconscious. Not making their appearance in the morning, at the usual time and the house remaining unopened, with no signs of life about it, Mr. Mingle procured a ladder and with Dr. Alexander entered a window, when the old lady was found nearly dead, as was supposed, and the little girl unconscious. The proper remedies were promptly applied by Dr. Alexander, and we are pleased to say that the child Mamie is now out of danger. It is feared, however, that the old lady cannot recover.

DID it ever occur to you, thoughtful and prudent reader, that Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine must be an article of real merit, or how could the manufacturer ever be able to advertise "money refunded to all dis satisfied purchasers."

The latest case of faith cure is that of a Miss Morgan, of Pittsburg, who had been confined to bed for three years with spinal disease. She is now able to walk and firmly believes that she will permanently recover, attributing her improved condition entirely to her faith in the efficacy of prayer.

Near Wilkinsburg, in Allegheny County, there is an encampment of two hundred Italians. They live in rough board shanties and canvas tents and do their own cooking. They have no idea what constitutes comfort or luxury, and are not epicureans. One of the Italians is always king of the camp and makes all their contracts with employers, for which he receives a percentage of the wages of the men under him. The ditchers get $1.25 a day, but after deducting the commission paid to the padrone they have little left. Though they don't have much, they save all they get. Their expenses are so little that they will get rich upon what an American laborer can't live on.

Discovery of a Big Coal Vein.

PITTSBURG, October 30.—An important discovery of a large vein of coal was made by the New York and Westmoreland Gas Coal and Coke Company at Manor Station this morning. At a depot of one hundred and eighty-three feet a vein between seven and eight feet of excellent coal was found. The shaft will be put in shape at once and the mine will be in operation within the next month. The company's territory lies mid way between the coal lands of the Westmoreland Company and the Pennsylvania Gas Coal Company, at each of which the same vein is found, but the latest shaft is twenty feet deeper, making quite a dip in the vein at the point struck yesterday. The cost of sinking the shaft was $35,000. The mine is near to the main line of the Pennsylvania Road and a siding has been graded up to the new works. The mine will prove a valuable one.

The Storm in the State.

Four Boats Wrecked in the Schuylkill Canal. The Occupants in Peril.

At Black Rock, near spring City, in the Schuylkill Canal, during the storm last night, four boats were wrecked. The dam at this point is very wide. The violence of the winds broke the tow-lines and the boats were drifted into the breast of the dam. They were so far away from the tow-path that it was impossible to cast a tow-line ashore. Several drivers made an effort to reach them in small canoes, but the latter capsized and a man named Donahue narrowly escaped being drowned.

For several hours the adrift boats rocked to and fro at the mercy of the winds. The families on board were panic-stricken, as it was expected every moment that the boats would be dashed to pieces. They crouched together in the cabins. About midnight the storm abated and the families were taken ashore. The individual boat Peerless ran ashore and filled with water. The crew easily escaped. The storm of last night was the most severe ever experienced in the Schuylkill Valley so late in the season.

HAZLETON, October 30.—[special.]—A heavy fall of snow occurred here today, in many places throughout the region the fall being two inches deep.

QUAKER
Is the Best
TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Les & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and pureness. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger and peppers and buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than the very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.

THE DEMAND FOR GAME.

People Eating More Every Season —A Dealer's Chat About Prices.

"Bear meat is not very salable in Philadelphia," said an old hunter and grain dealer yesterday. "We sell some to the Germans, but the average game eater does not seem to fancy it although I consider bearsteak one of the best of game foods. We get our bears from the mountains of Pennsylvania; some few come from Virginia and New York. The weather is not cold enough for venison, and the saddle we receive are 'slick.' Prime saddles bring 15¢ cents a pound. Just now there is considerable demand for Pennsylvania pheasant at $1.50 and $2 a pair.

"The Eastern pheasants, which come to this market drawn and are used principally by the hotels and restaurants, are quoted at sixty five and seventy cents. A sudden cold snap will increase the demand for game and bring us antelope, buffalo and black and white-tailed deer from the Western plains. Antelope venison is very sweet and juicy and is being eaten more every year by epicures. Grouse are excellent food birds and we sell a great many at prices which vary from $1.50 to $2. Quail are not yet in prime condition and sell at $2 to $4.50 a dozen. Woodcock sell readily at $7 to $8 a dozen and there is a steady demand for them. There are occasional calls for snipe, pin tail greuse and plover. People are beginning to eat game more and more every year, and there is every indication that this season will be a prosperous one, both for the hunters and dealers."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken by your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Houses in the National Capital.

It is easy to obtain a home in Washington, because most of the real estate agents will take a small cash payment and arrange the remainder of the debt at a low rate of interest—in some cases as low as five per cent. Certain lot holders have a very great advantage. Scattered throughout Washington there is a very large number of little plots of ground which belong to the public reservations. These bits of parking are given up rent free to the lot owners, who build up close to them. They have the practical use of them for nothing. They can fence them in, ornament them as they please, and enjoy everything about them except building on them. In many instances these little public strips are the only yards that certain house-owners have.—New York World.

Surface Indications

What a miner would very properly term "surface indications" of what is beneath, are the Pimples, Sties, Sore Eyes, Boils, and Cutaneous Eruptions with which people are annoyed in spring and early summer. The effete matter accumulated during the winter months, now makes its presence felt, through Nature's endeavors to expel it from the system. While it remains, it is a poison that festers in the blood and may develop into Scrofula. This condition causes derangement of the digestive and assimilatory organs, with a feeling of enervation, languor, and weariness—often lightly spoken of as "only spring fever." These are evidences that Nature is not able, unaided, to throw off the corrupt atoms which weaken the vital forces. To regain health, Nature must be aided by a thorough blood-purifying medicine; and nothing else is so effective as which is sufficiently powerful to expel from the system even the taint of Hereditary Scrofula.

The medical profession indorse AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and many attestations of the cures effected by it come from all parts of the world. It is, in the language of the Hon. Francis Jewett, ex-State Senator of Massachusetts and ex-Mayor of Lowell, "the only preparation that does real, lasting good."

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
